

– fiction with a satirical edge –

1999. Prophecies are rampant, and one of them is about to be fulfilled.

But which?

That's not the only problem Tom must solve as he finds himself re-enacting a John Buchan adventure.

He's in a race against time – and the candy bars are running out...

“A Hitchcockian shocker with a satirical edge for the virtual age; a twisted, knowing version of The Thirty-Nine Steps, relocated to Wales on the eve of millennium madness; and a conspiracy thriller which puts the world we think we live in into the blender. What emerges is a vision that's dementedly, entertainingly all too plausible”

Michael Eaton, screenwriter (Shipman, Shoot to Kill, Why Lockerbie?)
